As a brand that has consistently evolved over the past two decades, refining and redefining our process and presence in the outerwear landscape, it was essential for us to take a step back and reminisce on some of the most meaningful products from our past decades. The riders that influenced what we have become, the trends that crafted our culture, and, ultimately, our identity. With the new generation adopting and adapting nostalgic styles, this was the right time to dig into our archives and celebrate our past through modernized interpretations of some of our favorite silhouettes and historic color combinations while pursuing our continued commitment to obsessing, premium fabrics, perfected fits, and uncompromised performance.

Some styles know no gender; we identified key styles in the 24/25 line that we felt deserve to be double exposed for both men and women. Primarily, these styles reside in our oversized fit; we broadened the size scale to accommodate not only our female consumers but, in general, smaller consumers, giving more options in this particular fit and getting the look they want in the correct size.

It's no secret or surprise that workwear has been making a resurgence in skate and snowboard culture over the past few years. With this nostalgic mentality and appreciation for the past, we felt it was about time to bring back our classic Americana double knee workwear-inspired pants and build a whole capsule around it, including a jacket and a vest. Celebrating the toughness and attitude of true Americana while modernizing the fit into our revised Lose Fit, really catering to a look our team has been asking for.

Fit has always been a focal point for L1 and defining characteristics of team riders' styles and functionality for our consumers. L1 introduced and defined the functional skinny fit over a decade ago, introduced the functional Americana fit, and now redefines the functional baggy fit from cinched cuffs and wide knees to oversized to meet our North American and Asian team riders' demands for bigger fits that work.

As the trends in fit evolve, so does our baseline. This season, we've spent significant time obsessing and refining our current fits, establishing a new "baggier" baseline for our current and future offerings, and creating a comprehensive offering with a more forgiving fit within our five distinct fit categories. The L1 fits have always been for snowboarders by core snowboarders, providing the most current functional fits and styles to the L1 consumer.

RECYCLED MATERIALS

A work in progress, we've set a goal to work towards having a line completely made of only fully recycled fabrics in the near future. As we start this journey, our main goal is to do our part in reducing the industry's greater impact one step at a time.

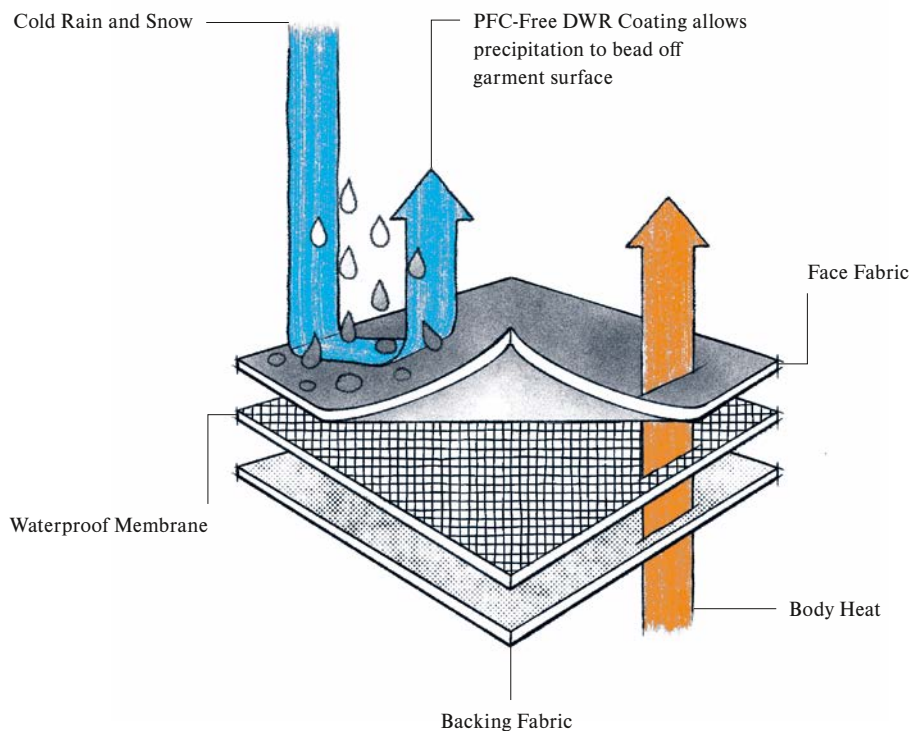

ECO YARN LINING

The first step being the addition of (GRS) certified 100% recycled polyester found in our linings as well as our new high pile fleece, manufactured from used PET bottles. Using environmentally-friendly recycling processes, it does not require petrochemical raw materials and saves natural resources reducing the burden on the environment. We have also switched our nylon lining in 45 of our 48 styles to Ecoya® – a type of solution dyed yarn. Statistics show when generic textiles are replaced with Ecoya®, the release of CO2 and COD is greatly reduced while water and chemicals are also conserved. Such as water savings of 46%, COD savings of 67%, Coal savings of 64%, Chemical savings of 92%, CO2 savings of 63%, Electricity savings of 59%.

As part of our commitment to improving our environmental footprint we have entirely switched from C6 DWR containing hazardous PFC's (per- and poly-fluorinated chemicals) to PFC-free DWR on all our fabrics and styles that require a DWR coating. The importance of a cleaner textile process is fundamental in our journey to reducing our environmental footprint.
