In the winter of 2006, during a six-week snowboarding pilgrimage to Mammoth, California, Mat faced an unexpected hurdle. His massive dreadlocked mane made finding a fitting beanie a near-impossible quest. Sidelined by an early injury, Mat's restless spirit led him to a tiny wool shop in Mammoth. There, he decided to take matters into his own hands, quite literally, by crocheting a beanie that would finally embrace his untamed locks.

When his crew returned from the slopes that evening, they were blown away by Mat's DIY creation and immediately clamored for their own.

Back in Switzerland, the excitement continued. Encouraged by the enthusiasm for the first batch of beanies and headbands, Mat bought more wool, and thus, HAE was born.

For HAE, the Alps aren't just a playground; they're a way of life. They harbor a deep reverence for the peaks' history, raw beauty, and delicate ecosystem. Their passion extends beyond designing gear and conquering slopes. It's about the warmth and power of community, an essential principle of the wild mountain lifestyle.
